Options for Cruze

HOLDEN will add a highly specified CDX diesel variant to its popular Holden Cruze range.

A CDX diesel in manual and automatic transmissions will join the CD diesel, CD and CDX petrol models already on sale.

Holden's Executive Director Sales and Marketing, John Elsworth, said the new diesel variant was responding to positive feedback and customer demand.

"Since we launched in June, Cruze has really struck a chord with motorists, selling over 6,144 units to date and market feedback has been overwhelmingly positive," Mr Elsworth said.

"Cruze has shot straight into the top 10 of Australia's best selling cars - we're delighted with the reception it's getting in the marketplace.

"Cruze offers outstanding value for money and we're seeing many customers opting to buy the higher specified model with the petrol powertrain.

"Diesel is proving a popular alternative so it made sense to introduce a new model that offers the best of both worlds.

"The high level of features offered on the CDX combined with the performance and fuel efficiency of the diesel makes it a smart choice.

"We've been listening to what our customers have been asking for and this is our response."

The Cruze range combines five-star ANCAP safety with exceptional ride and handling, fuel efficiency and stylish design.

Cruze CDX diesel will offer the same specification as the petrol variant with the addition of a tyre inflator kit. A spare wheel will be available as a no cost option as per CD diesel model.

Why I read the Western Weekender

I believe the Weekender is the only local paper that's actually dedicated to providing its readers with 'real' local news... the kind of news that matters to us Penrithians!

You can pretty much guarantee if you heard it today, they've already got it in print or on the website.

As a local business owner, my favourite column would have to be "Your Business" with Michael Todd. He's got some great ideas that boy!

Environment Tip of the Week

USE the sun's energy to heat water. A solar hot water system can reduce your household hot water bill by around 65 per cent.

Solar hot water systems also conserve our natural resources and the environment.
